Here in this house of government we pause to pray for ourselves:

Inside some of us carry a brokenness too deep for telling; some of us are in love with a past which can never be again; some of us are weary in trying to sustain an image which no longer exists; some of us have grown tired from battling social wrongs; some of us have become world-wise and sophisticated at the expense of faith.

Give us, we pray, wisdom for an honest reading of ourselves and issues. Give us courage to press through to the end. Give us faith that we may know the joy of dependence.

In our Lord's name. Amen.
